* * * DIRECTOR APPOINTED * * *

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Richard Wolfert, who was named Secretary-Director of the State Library Commission as of November 1, 1969. The appointment was made by Governor William L. Guy on September 5, 1969. The Secretary-Director will be under the administration of the Director of Institutions, Mr. Walter R. Fiedler, who was appointed by the governor to his post on July 1, 1969.

Mr. Wolfert has been director of the Veterans Memorial Library in Bismarck since May, 1967. He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1959, with a masters degree in Library Science. He was employed by the Chicago Municipal Reference Library, and later was director of technical services at the Racine, Wisconsin Public Library. He then served as Director of the Wisconsin State Reference and Loan Library in Madison prior to coming to Bismarck. He is married and he and his wife have two daughters. He is president of the Bismarck-Mandan Library Association and is a member of the board of directors of Western North Dakota Public Television, Inc., a group whose purpose is to bring an educational television station to Bismarck.

The directors who have preceded him in office are: Miss Zana Miller, who was formerly at the Wisconsin State Library Commission, serving frem 1907 to 1908. The first budget was $1500; the next biennual budget was $7800 to carry on the programs already started. In 1907 the Department of Public Instruction turned over its educational reference library, which consisted of about 3,000 volumes. Mrs. Minnie Clarke Budlons secretary of the Library Commission, took over the duties of the director and remained until 1919. In the next few years, there were several changes in personnel because of the political turmoil. Miss Lillian E. Cook was the next director, appointed in 1924, and remained in office until 1948. In spite of the depression and the aftermath of World War I, she was able to perform the duties of field work, circulation of recreational and instructional books and cooperation with state departments and institution. Miss Cook stated that when the movement to secure Federal help was started in 1948, she knew it would require her to remain at the Commission for many years plus the fact she disapproved of government funds replacing local funds. After leaving she traveled all over the world, crossing the Atlantic seven times, once by air, and the Pacific five times. She now lives at 2625 Park Avenue, Apt. 505, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 5540 Mrs. Hazel Webster Byrnes became director in 1948. She was formerly the librarian at Mayville State Teachers College, Mayville, North Dakota. She received many honors during the time she was director. The Federal monies under the Library Services and Construction Act were first received in 1957 by the State Library Commission. County and multi-county libraries were established and library development was extended in many parts of the state. When Mrs. Byrnes resigned in January, 1965, the Board of Administration appointed Mrs. Freda W. Hatten director in 1966. She had been field consultant for the State Library Commission and knew the librarians and their many problems implicitly. She was successful in many projects that were undertaken during the time she was director. The Northeastern Dakota Bookmobile Library, a multi-county library of Cavalier, Pembina, Walsh and Nelson Counties, was established in 1968. Siou County Library came into existence and is serving some stations in Grant County. The Union List of Serials, comprising the holdings of thirteen South Dakota academic libraries and forty North Dakota libraries originated in August, 1968, and finished in Appear 1060. These book catalogs have been gent to the libraries which have taken part in this project and other libraries. She was a capable and earnest woman who especially liked assisting librarians in solving their problems. Mrs. Hatten resigned from her position July 31, 1968, to accept a position at the Library, North Dakota State University, Fargo. Until another director was appointed, Mrs. Leone Morrison, reference librarian, was asked by the Board of Administration to act in the interim.

LIBRARY PROGRESS - JULY, 1968 - JULY, 1969

There are two projects which are receiving great interest from all librarians. Both are listed in the state plan and should be continued until July, 1970 - The Northern Red River Valley Bookmobile Demonstration no. 2 and the Northwest Library Federation Demonstration, financed under Title III, interlibrary cooperation, Library and Construction Act funds. Mrs. Nora Mohberg, Demonstrations Administrator, who assisted in establishing the Northeastern Dakota Bookmobile Library, is in charge of the Northern Red River Valley Bookmobile Demonstration, which is comprised of Griggs, Steele, Traill, Ramsey, Wells and Benson Counties. Presently, the second library demonstration has grown into such a large regional block that, with the interest of Eddy, Foster and Barnes Counties, an additional bookmobile is necessary so as to fulfill the requests of the citizens of these counties! The many people she has contacted have shown a great interest in this library service. The Northwest Library Federation, comprised of eleven counties (Divide, Burke, Renville, Williams, Mountrail, Ward, Bottineau, Rolette, McHenry, Pierce and McKenzie) began in 1968, with headquarters at Minot Public Library. Mr. Everett Foster, director of the Minot Public Library, is the coordinator. Many services, such as rotation of books, cataloging, speakers bureau, tapes, records, etc., are made available to the librarians of the federation. At the end of the demonstration period, the members of the federation will contract for the services to be received.

Library Services for the Disadvantaged - Among the twenty-six attendants at the Institute for Public Libraries Serving the Disadvantaged held at St. Paul, Minnesota, June 2-13, 1969, were Mrs. Pauline Sadler, coordinator, State Library Commission, Bismarck; Mrs. Ora Stewart, director, Northeastern Dakota Bookmobile Library, Grafton; and Mrs. Kathleen McBride, cataloger, Minot Public Library, Minot. The men and women attending the meetings experienced a sense of responsibility towards the problems of the disadvantaged. Every participant submitted a project which was to be implemented in his or her community.

Mrs. McBride's project was a bookmobile; painted, carpeted, and equipped with audiovisual materials and large print books for exhibition held on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation during the summer pow-wows and rodeos. She moved to Minnesota in August.

Mrs. Ora Stewart, Grafton, chose to work with the Mexican-American migrant laborers who work in the fields of that area during the harvest. The project includes: establishment of English/Spanish paperback book deposits in churches, stores, and laundromats by the library; Homenaker Clubs and other groups sponsorship of magazine deposits at laundromats; cooperation with the educational program of Migrants, Inc., for offering source material from the library; offering of the library's printing facilities for the migrants' newspheet; subscription to Texas hometown papers of the migrants and placed in laundromats; display of Mexican arts and crafts at library; advertising of library services available in the library community on a local Mexican-American radio program; and efforts to dispel prejudices through the media of local organizations. Mrs. Stewart's library has the advantage of reaching these migrant workers on the farms, having the resources of the bookmobile at their disposal.

Mrs. Pauline Sadler, State Library Commission, has as her project to provide library resources to Indians on and off Indian Reservations. Mrs. Sadler has for some time past considered the need for working toward a program of financial support for the Indians. The assessed valuation of the counties in which the reservations are located relates to a very low tax income. For this reason, something had to be done. Negotiations made by her with the nations' Congressional representatives have made library services to the Indians on and adjacent to reservations a possibility. Contacts with the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Tribal Council of the Fort Berthold Reservation, VISTA representatives, school boards and superintendents, and the cooperation of the Department of Public Instruction have assisted in setting the pace for this worthwhile library project. Numerous contacts, negotiations, and considerations have developed the plan for contracts between the library or libraries, and the school districts serving within the reservation area. The finances will be paid directly to the county libraries for the services by the Director of Indian Education within the Department of Public Instruction. Fort Berthold Indian Reservation was selected as the first reservation for this project since there are two established multicounty libraries directed by ambitious, energetic directors who are dedicated to reaching all of the citizens with the best possible resources and services available and they will make every effort to make this outreaching program a success by increased efforts. The two multi-county libraries serving the Fort Berthold Reservation are the West-Plains Rural Library at Williston, and the McLean-Mercer Regional Library at Riverdale. Mrs. Anne Lassey is the Director at the West-Plains Rural Library, and Mrs. Vera DeTienne is the Director of the McLean-Mercer Regional Library. Plans are for developing and increasing library services to the Indians on and adjacent to the reservations on each of the reservations, one at a time. It is hoped that a multi-county library region can be developed in the south-central area within the next year so that the Standing Rock Reservation can be next in line for this increased library service. The Standing Rock Indian Reservation lies within the Bismarck-Mandan library region of the recent 8-region plan. Within this area, Bismarck has a bookmobile that could be a part of this extended library service. Morton County at one time served Sioux County with library services.

The Governor's Regional Library Conferences held during the month of October, 1968, in the county seats of twelve regions of the state proved successful. The participants expressed their viewpoints about the needs of library services and exchanged ideas of how libraries could expand the services in the community. The citizens expressed at the regional conferences the desire for holding meetings in each county in order that more people could be involved in the library program. "Citizens for Libraries" meetings held in the area of the Northwest Library Federation were programmed for information about plans for library development, e.g., state aid for libraries, interlibrary cooperation, regional libraries and citizen support for Library legislation.

8-Region Library System - A study made by the University of North Dakota, outlined North Dakota into an eight-region system. The theory behind these regions was to devise a method whereby a number of counties would comprise a region. The various state government agencies would feasibly plan their activities within the same region. Tentatively, federal finances will be granted in block assignments. Uniformity of these regions as much as possible within the state agencies would provide a more efficient organization for disbursement of funds within the governmental structure of the state. Projects will be planned so as to have less overlapping of programs. They will be organized so that the various agencies can pool their state funds into a greater matching effort for federal grants. Wise disbursement of these funds would aid the scant rural areas where the capita taxes need an additional subsidy for an effective governmental process. Most state agencies have already structured regions in another manner. However, the tendency will be to follow along with the 8-region plan wherever this can be accomplished without causing too great a difficulty to the agencies concerned. The 8-region plan will be more conducive to the acceptance of the citizens in the rural areas. The delegates at the Governor's Regional Conferences in the fall of 1968 continuously brought the problem of the four regions recommended by Berninghausen's library survey to the attention of the assembled groups. The rural citizens felt that there would not be much hope for direct library services for them. Smaller regions will in most instances be able to have bookmobile services in a more tangible form, affording a sizable collection. Direct selections can be made by the rural library patron allowing for self-appraisal and choice of materials to satisfy the major individual needs. Up to about ten years ago, prior to rural library demonstrations and multi- county regions, the rural citizens were at a deplorable disadvantage where public library service was concerned. Before that time, library services were a hit-and-miss process. Fortunately, some dedicated farm folk and diligent, hard-working librarians have made a new outlet in life for rural citizens.

Bookmobile libraries serving the multi-county libraries exceed per capita circulation figures to that of the large public libraries. Books are read and they show the signs of circulation. Cost per capita in operation is also less in the multi-county libraries than that of the large public libraries. North Dakota has come a long way, in the past ten years, in library planning. Federal grants have assisted the State Library to organize the multi-county library regions. Library services on a multicounty regional basis has caught on to the degree where North Dakota citizens will soon realize an educational process that should have been workable forty years ago. Statistically one-third of the citizens of North Dakota do not have local public library services. Unfortunately and fortunately, it has become a possibility! Unfortunately, because it took so long for the awareness of the need for public library services. Fortunately, because North Dakota citizens are now progessively library-minded and working toward statewide regional library services. More people are becoming interested in National Library Week and eagerly promoting library services and libraries. Civic organizations and professional associations are commanding their efforts into library development programs and projects. North Dakota is shouldering a greater responsibility toward public libraries as an educational process for more knowledgable people.

Book power - 50th anniversary of Childrens' Book Week, November 16-22, 1969.

Among the attractions at the North Dakota-South Dakota Library Association convention, held in Bismarck September 24-26, was the American Library Association booth. October 21 is Membership Day, 1969. All students of library science schools are reminded that they are eligible to join A. L. A. for $7.50 effective January 1, 1970. Join the A. L. A. and promote the library profession.

The joint convention of the two states was attended by 250 librarians and library trustees. Highlights of the convention were the speakers: Mrs. Evelyn Brewster, Library Consultant, Colorado State Library, Denver, Colorado; Mr. Dwight Blood, Professor, University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyomong; Miss Eileen Cooke, Assistant Director of the American Library Association, Washington Office; Mr. Erling Rolfsrud, North Dakota author; The Lieutenant Governor of North Dakota, Mr. Richard F. Larsen; Mrs. Dorothy Rosen, Santa Fe, New Mexico, American Library Trustee Association Board Member, and A. L. A. Councilor; and the Author's Tea in honor of the North Dakota and South Dakota authors: Nora Mohberg, a native North Dakotan; John Sandstrom, Lone Tree, North Dakota; Rev. Louis Pfaller, Richardton, North Dakota; Betty Mills, Bismarck, North Dakota; Herman Chilson, Webster, South Dakota; Lyla Hoffine, Kenmare, North Dakota; Dr. W. C. Hunter, Fargo, North Dakota; Martha Coon, Vermillion, South Dakota; Richard Lyons, Fargo, North Dakota; Thomas McGrath, Fargo, North Dakota; Hiram Drache, Moorhead, Minnesota; Erling Rolfsrud, Alexandria, Minnesota; and Sister Tone Hilger, Bismarck, North Dakota.

One of the authors, Miss Lyla Hoffine, professor emeritus at Minot State College, has been recently selected for inclusion in Foremost Women in Communications, a reference work on prominent women authors. She is also listed in Who's Who of American Women; Who's Who in Education; and The Dictionary of International Biography. She is writing her eighth novel tentatively titled The Dying Eagle Dance which deals with people in the upper Great Plains.

Mr. Erwin J. (E.J.) Anderson, North and South Dakota representative and Mr. Pierre B. Marien of J. G. Ferguson Publishing Co. of Chicago had a drawing for the book International Dictionary of Thoughts during the convention. The four winners were: Winona W. Sparks, Spearfish, South Dakota; Liess Vantine, Bismarck, North Dakota; Mrs. Doris Hanson, Bismarck, North Dakota; and Mrs. Violet Bailey, Harvey, North Dakota.

"1889 - North Dakota became a state. Was named 'North Dakota' from the Indian words meaning north of South Dakota, and friendly." This was taken from the pocket guide, A Modern Guide to North Dakota, which was presented to the association members at the first luncheon. This pocket guide was donated by the Melroe Co., Gwinner, North Dakota.

Officers and chairmen of the North Dakota Library Association elected for the coming year are: President, Mr. Donald Gribble, UND Ellendale Branch; President-elect, Mr. Everett Foster, Minot Public Library; Secretary, Miss Lillian Jacobson, Valley City State College; Treasurer, Mrs. Nora Mohberg, Demonstrations Administrator, State Library Commission; Mountain-Plains Library Representative, Mr. Dennis Page, Grand Forks Public Library. The following were elected to head the various divisions of the group: Academic Library Chairman, Mr. K. L. Janecek, N.D.S.U.; School Library Chairman, Mr. Janes Woodrow, Grand Forks; County Library Chairman, Mrs. Anne Lassey, West Plains Regional at Williston; Trustees, Mrs. William Mills, Bismarck; and Public Library Chairman, Mr. Richard Bunday, Bismarck Public Library.

During the North and South Dakota Library Convention a special meeting was held to consider forming a Dakota Junior Members Round Table. What is a Junior Members Round Table? It is an organization with four functions: development of social and professional contacts for the new librarian; orientation to the library profession and a period of professional growth; involvement in professional activities; leadership in JMRT and in North Dakota library development. Who is eligible? Librarians and media specialists who are either 35 years old or younger, or who have been librarians for five years or less are eligible. The planning committee includes the following: SOUTH DAKOTA James Dertien, USD, Vermillion; Carol Godfrey, Augustana College, Sioux Falls; NORTH DAKOTA Diane Briggs, Public Library, Fargo; and Michael M. Miller, NDSU, Fargo. Consideration is being given to forming a two state round table because of the limited number of librarians. Informational material will be sent to eligible librarians and media specialists in November. To be placed on the mailing list, please write to Mike Miller, NDSU Library, Fargo, North Dakota, 58102.

Michael M. Miller, Executive Director for National Library Week in North Dakota, will leave in November for a Planning Conference in New York City and will meet with Senator Milton R. Young, NLW State Honorary chairman. The program planned for the NLW State Committee held in Bismarck was well-attended by an energetic and enthusiastic group.

Minot Public Library initiated new library service hours on Sept. 14, with an open house from 1-5 pm. The library will be open every Sunday from 1-5 pm. Those who attended the open house were privileged to see a mum show by the Magic City Garden Club and a Art Show by Richard Brocket.

A few librarians from North Dakota attended the "service for public patrons between libraries" (Interlibrary Loan) Oct. 13-17, 1969 at the University of Colorado Libraries, Boulder, Colorado.

Book exchange between libraries was held at the Harvey Public Library on October 4, 1969. Mrs. Violet Bailey is always ready to promote libraries in her community, state and nation.

During the Harvey Public Library exchange of books Mayor Dan Schroeder invited the Northern Red River Valley Regional Library Demonstration II Bookmobile to stop at the Armory as well as the library so that the rural people could be contacted.

Mary Koch Ferguson, Bismarck, who has worked gratuitously at the State Library Commission, has an article "Ferguson's Folly" published in Family Houseboating, November, 1969. It is a delightful story of family fun on a houseboat.

The Senior Citizens of Cooperstown visited the Public Library after their regular meeting on Oct. 21. The bookmobile librarian and public librarian displayed a book exhibit of well-illustrated books for their perusal. Coffee and cookies were served.

On October 25, 1969, the Steering Committee of the Northern Red River Valley Demonstration II of the six counties will meet for the purpose of establishing a method of communicating with the public to show the library services that are offered through this demonstration.

Action needed on Copyright Revision Bill (S543) as stated in "Washington Newsletter," October 7, 1969.

Librarians are asked to communicate with their Senators to ask that an Amendment to S543 be considered to confirm the library's right to make a single copy for a user without risking the claim of copyright infringement. Among the points that may be emphasized in a letter to the Senators are the following:

Copying is essential for library work - study, investigation and preservation. Photocopying is merely a modern method, but it also facilitates interlibrary loans and library systems.

Single photocopying is merely a normal use of purchased material.

Library photocopying is almost always limited to single copies.

Library single photocopying is traditional, practiced both under and prior to enactment of the present Copyright Act of 1909.

No damage to proprietors from library single photocopying is shown in four reports including reports under contract to the National Science Foundation and U. S. Office of Education. On the contrary, there is some evidence that photocopying encourages sales. Sales of books and periodicals have boomed in recent years.

Library photocopying would be outlawed by the present bill because of (a) the substitution of the word "reproduce" for "copy" and (b) doubt as to applicability of fair use to library photocopying, together with the restricted interpretation of fair use in House Report 83. In view of the fact that copying machines are increasingly available for public use, it is completely illogical to believe that outlawing photocopying in libraries will cut off such activity, or the user's ingenuity in finding ways to circumvent restrictions on his study and research needs. In other words S. 543, as currently proposed, without an exemption for legitimate photocopying in libraries, is unworkable and unenforceable.

It is contrary to public interest and good sense to subject public service agencies to the threat of a suit in carrying out normal functions.

Johnson-O'Malley funds will hopefully be available to the Fort Berthold Reservation for increased public library service to the Indians on and adjacent to the reservation.

Mrs. Pauline Sadler, Library Coordinator, has been working toward this goal for about one year. The project has been accomplished with the efforts of Senator Quentin N. Burdick, Washington, D. C., the cooperation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Department of Public Instruction, the Three Affiliated Tribes and other interested citizens.

Counties where Indian Reservations are located have a low valuation of property and tax earnings are below that of most other counties. For this reason, support for public library service has been a grave problem. Fortunately, this new avenue of finances will be a boost for this service in the Fort Berthold Reservation area.

Contracts for this public library service will be issued by the Director of Indian Education and the Department of Public Instruction for the schools and the libraries that are located in the Fort Berthold Reservation area.

Mrs. Sadler has one appointment remaining of the seven schools on the Fort Berthold Reservation to negotiate the necessary business procedure for obtaining the Johnson-O'Malley funds.

She is confident that Mrs. Anne Lassey, Director, West Plains Rural Library, Williston and Mrs. Vera DeTienne, Director, McLean-Mercer Regional Library, Riverdale, will prove this service a success and in so doing provide the salesmanship for the ground-work of the Johnson-O'Malley Act funding for public library service on all North Dakota reservations.

Mrs. Barbara Cowles, librarian at Quain and Ramstad Clinic, passed away on September 27, 1969 after a brief illness. She will be missed by her many friends throughout the state.

Greetings from your new state librarian!

As we approach the 70's we are becoming acutely aware of the need for new approaches to our old problems of inadequate financing of our libraries.

Growth in service demands and complexity plus inflation in face of lagging revenues is causing librarians, trustees, and legislators to take a new look at existing library service patterns with an eye toward better coordination of all types of libraries throughout our state.

We are indeed fortunate that Governor William L. Guy has taken a major step forward in fostering the development of all types of libraries in our state by appointing an Advisory Council on Libraries.

EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 50

WHEREAS, more than 50 percent of North Dakota citizens do not have legal access to free public library service; and

WHEREAS, all libraries are experiencing increased costs of operation resulting from inflation, an increase in demands and complexity of services by adults and students, together with inadequate available materials; and

WHEREAS, there is a continued shortage of qualified librarians; and

WHEREAS, it is the policy of the state of North Dakota, as a part of its provision for public education to promote the establishment, maintenance and development of public library service, and that such public library service is to be provided by a library supported by public funds and operated for the benefit and free use of individuals of all ages in the community in the meeting of their informal educational, informational, and recreational interests and needs;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William L. Guy, Governor of North Dakota, hereby establish the North Dakota Advisory Council on Libraries to provide advice and counsel to the Director of Institutions and the State Librarian on matters of policy and programs pertaining to the State Library and to statewide library service and development.

The Advisory Council on Libraries shall consist of fifteen members appointed by the Governor and shall be made on the basis of ability, a sound understanding of the total responsibilities and objectives of a state library, and an active interest in the attainment of these comprehensive goals, without regard to political or partisan considerations. The term of office of each appointive member shall be four years, beginning July 1 of the year of appointment and until his successor has been appointed and qualified. The Governor shall appoint all members as of July 1 of the year following the Governor's election. Any vacancy on the Board shall be filled for the remainder of the unexpired term in the same manner as the original appointment. No person shall be appointed to the Advisory Council for more than two consecutive terms. THE PUBLIC LIBRARY, AN OPPORTUNITY FOR THE ADULT MIND TO GROW

The idea of continuous education as a way of life is not new. Lifelong learning antedate by decades the current wave of concern provoked by the impact of computers and automation.

Just as Sputnik served merely to catalyze an already widespread concern in the United States for strengthening the quality of American education, so the recent spectacular accomplishments and demonstrated potentials of the computerand-automation revolution have simply given special meaning, special thrust to the idea of lifelong learning as a way of life.

At a time in the near future when 90% of the produced goods can be turned out by only 2% of the population, we may have to turn our attention to the long overdue task of the inner development of man. We can no longer compulsively absorb ourselves in the accomplishment of routine and relatively meaningless tasks. Our very sanity may depend on the masses of people accepting learning as a way of life.

In ancient times organized education was for adults, not youth. Most of the great teachers in history - Confucius, the Hebrew prophets, Aristotle, Plato, and Jesus - devoted their energies not to the development of the immature mind, but rather to the cultivation of the mature mind. The great social movements that produced Western civilization, the Judeo-Christian religions, the Renaissance, the Reformation, the democratic revolutions, the Industrial Revolution - all were founded on the ability of the adult mind to learn and change.

Many people have thought of education as being for youngsters and as terminating at the high school or college level. Such a viewpoint does not spell freedom, but bondage. In the age of cybernetics, the working man or woman may expect as many as eight or nine job changes during a working career. A worker must be mentally prepared to keep learning and relearning all his life. It is almost too late to do this adequately when the crisis of job change hits. We are told that 50% of the jobs awaiting children who are now in the third grade do not even exist today.

A person moving through this new world will have to be reborn a number of times in his lifetime. He will leave behind the cocoon of an outmoded job and keep going on to (hopefully) greater and better opportunities.

The established educational enterprise, however, was formally evolved principle that adult learning is optional. Our traditional educational policy has been based on the assumption that an individual can acquire in his youth the bulk of the knowledge and skill required for him to live adequately the rest of his life. Accordingly, the educational effort of society was concentrated, until quite recently, almost exclusively on youth. The few programs organized for the education of adults were concerned chiefly with remedying deficiencies in the education of youth, particularly in the areas in literacy, citizenship, vocational skills, and the use of leisure time.

Adult Learning

Now a new note is appearing in expanding educational thought: adults must continue to learn. Learning, like breathing, is a requirement of living. For the first time in the history of civilization, the time span of drastic cultural change has been telescoped into less than the lifetime of the individual. The current generation of mature adults is the first generation faced with managing a culture different from the one transmitted to them. The consequence is such that the well-educated youth of today may be an obsolete adult tomorrow.

The set of facts the present adult generation learned about nature, the human personality, the arts, and the ordering of human affairs has today been supplanted by a more complete and extensive set of facts. More knowledge has been discovered during the lifetime of the present adult population than existed at the time of its birth. Futhermore, knowledge becomes obsolete in essence. Learned truths (for instance, that matter is mass) become untruths in the light of advanced learning (matter is now defined as mass-energy).

In regard to skills, obsolescence is even more apparent. Technological changes require adults continuously to adapt to new methods of work, and often to new vocations. Such everyday skills as those involved in child-rearing, food preparation, transportation, communication, health maintenance, and leisure-time activity are constantly being modified.

We are in danger of becoming obsolete in other ways which are less visible, but even more tragic. The increasing necessity for a mobile population adapted to concentrated living in cities requires adults to learn new patterns, values, senses of belonging, and new ways of achieving personal identity repeatedly within a single lifetime. Such traditional havens of stability as churches, homes, schools, governments, businesses, and voluntary organizations are in constant flux, striving continually toward greater productivity and compatibility with modern living conditions.

The consequence of this sudden turn in the tide of civilization is clear; a society that makes its educational investment almost entirely in children and youth is on the way to becoming obsolete and is reducing its chances for continued growth. This is why adult education is shifting rapidly from a marginal to a central concern for many educational statesmen; why legislators and educational policymakers recognize that society now has as great a stake in the continued teaching of adults as it ever had in the education of children.

Leisure

The time of rest in the creative process of life has to be more than a day. It must become an attitude and even a way of life.

The person who cannot attain a relaxation of mind and shift gears from work to rest may develop "weekend neurosis". He can go to pieces on the weekend when he is "out of work". It has been said that the most dangerous threat hanging over American society is the threat of leisure. Those who have the least preparation for leisure will have the worst of it.

In an era when people may have nothing to do and lots of time to do it in, we need mind and spirit-stretching exercise to help people develop their humanity instead of becoming insensitive and mechanical in a push-button, computer-run society; to balance the heavy emphasis on statistics and science that will be demanded of all students; to help the spirit of men flourish and stay creative. We may very well need a new view of life's meaning in a culture which makes a fetish of youth. It sometimes seems a shame, almost a sin, to grow older.

Still, people are living longer, and we need to find ways to help them continue to find significance and meaning in later years. The end of meaningful work or activity is often followed by the death of the body.

Leisure offers the opportunity to come away by yourselves and rest a while. The individual may be brought into greater confrontation with the significance and the unifying issues of life.

Already it is becoming clear that the main 'work" of the future will be education, that people will not so much earn a living as learn a living. Nearly thirty million people in the United States are now pursuing some form of adult education, and the number continues to grow. Industry and the military, as well as the arts and sciences, are beginning to consider education their main business.

We can accurately say of man today, "He's getting better and better all the time, but if he ever stops getting better he won't be much good." When we think we are through!

Education, then, is seen not as a finality ("He had a good education") but as a vital continuum. Man will have his basic formative power challenged to the utmost by the need to learn continually and make radical reforms in himself.

We may at last realize that our place of learning is the world itself, the entire planet we live on. The little red schoolhouse with which we have been familiar, is now becoming the big round schoolhouse of the world.

Education - in the sense of learning to love, to grow, to change - can become not the woeful preparation for some job that makes us less than we could be, but the very essence, the joyful whole of existence itself.

In our communities, the public library is one source for "new learning by adults". Indeed, I believe that this "new learning by adults" to be the main business of the public library.

Of course, the public library is not the only source, nor should it be. But it is a vital source, and an economical one to provide.

In my role as State Librarian, I am faced with the stark fact that half of our population does not have access to a public library, and has little chance of having one with the present restrictions of state law, local financing, and a rather small view of the need for a public library.

A solution to the inadequacies of our public libraries as centers for "new learning for adults" will be found. Governor William L. Guy has appointed an Advisory Council on Libraries which, in conjunction with the State Library Commission, will take a close look at the state's library situation.

Where we will go from here remains to be seen.

"Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." We are asking; we are seeking; we are knocking.

GRAFTON WORKSHOP

Librarians and media specialists in northeastern North Dakota met in Grafton November 14th where Michael M. Miller of NDSU, and Executive Director of the North Dakota National Library Week Program, presented a demonstration titled "Today's Techniques in Audio-Visual, Bulletin Boards, and Displays."

COST OF LIBRARY SERVICES GOES UP

The latest American Library Association report indicates that $6.12 per capita for public library service is needed annually in a community to support minimal public library service. In North Dakota, the average per capita cost in communities which have library service is $1.87, ranging from a low of $0.13 to a high of $3.53. The state wide average is $1.48. The cost of supporting the State Library Commission is 15 cents per capita.

The a rage cost of a book is now $8.47, an increase of $0.48 over the previous year or an increase of six percent.

Salaries now average 67 percent of the total library budget; books about 20 percent and 13 percent for all other operating expenses.

The American Library Association also indicated that per capita costs of library services were higher in smaller communities and has been recommending larger governmental units of service than individual cities and counties.

It is evident that North Dakota libraries and trustees will have to work together to find additional support for their libraries and to explore new ways of serving the swelling demands of the adults and students for improved library services.

NEA - ALA TO STUDY COMMUNITY LIBRARIES

The Joint Committee of the National Education Association and the American Library Association have appointed a subcommittee to study the possibilities of providing total community library resources to serve the schools and all segments of the public. This action was taken, the committee stated, because it believes there are "widespread inadequacies of separate school and public libraries in providing for lifelong continuing education, individualizing learning, utilization of multimedia materials, and new developments in technology." The subcommittee will explore possible funding of a pilot project.

THE BUREAU OF THE BUDGET'S VIEW OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Federal funds for public library services were reduced in President Nixon's budget for 1969-70 by fifty percent. A reason for the cut is given by Mark W. Alger, Bureau of the Budget, Executive Office of the President:

"In making choices among education programs, the budget recommendation for Federal aid to public libraries was reduced below appropriations for the fiscal year which has just ended. This recommendation does not reflect on the importance of services which libraries render to the public. But Federal programs in support of libraries in general make a lesser contribution to education of the disadvantaged than do many other Federal efforts. Also, other Federal programs have a more direct effect on improving the overall quality and effectiveness of education than does library aid. In addition, since State and local governments are the major source of revenue for public libraries, the reducation of Federal support should be less of a hardship than if similar reductions had been made in some of the other education programs."

BOOKMARK COLLECTION EXHIBIT

The collection of bookmarks from around the world belonging to Michael M. Miller, a librarian at NDSU, Fargo, appeared in the Governor's residence during a recent open house. In October the collection was shown at the Bismarck Junior College Library.

NEW EDITION OF NORTH DAKOTA UNION LIST OF SERIALS

The State Library Commission announcespreparation of a 1970 edition of the North Dakota Union List of Serials. The new South Dakota edition is now available from: University of South Dakota Library, Vermillion, South Dakota 57069. $15.00.640 pages.

REPORT OF TRUSTEE WORKSHOP

"If we go regional, who will pick out our books?" "Why did the mill levy legislation fail in the last session?" "Where do we find the money, then?" "How do you try to reach more patrons?" These were among the questions thrown around at a trustee workshop in Carrington, North Dakota on November 15, 1969. The meeting was arranged by the Trustee Section of the North Dakota Library Association.

The opening session established the topics those attending thought most relevant to library trustees, and then narrowed them to one to talk about before lunch. Which one did they pick? Regionalization. Harold Aleshire, trustee from Minot and Vice-President of the Trustee Section, discussed the Northwest Library Federation and answered questions on its operation.

After lunch (for which only the menu was structured), Harold Aleshire conducted the group -- first in a demonstration of how the Every Library Survey works when it happens to you. He gave himself the questionaire and answered it out loud as he had done for real. He then discussed what the Minot Public Library Board has been doing since they did the survey.

The meeting then returned to the topics established in the morning: finance, regionalization, legislation, trustee organization, public relations, extending library service, and other subjects of trustee interest. Mrs. Thelma Klingensmith submitted tentative by-laws she had prepared using other by-laws from other areas.

The group requested another meeting of trustees sometime next summer or early fall after the analysis of the Minot federation would be completed, with Everett Foster, Minot librarian, and Richard Wolfert, state librarian, as resource people. There were 25 people in attendance which is nearly double what it has been at a state convention of N. D. L. A. The consensus of the group was that we should continue to meet with N. D. L. A., but that additional meetings such as this were also necessary.

LIBRARY SCIENCE STUDY SUBSIDIES

The State Library Commission is accepting applications for its subsidy of undergraduate work in library science. Upon approval of the application and upon successful completion of the undergraduate work in library science the State Library Commission pays to the student the amount of $15.00 for each quarter hour credit received. The applicant must be employed in a public library in North Dakota and must give assurance of continued employment in a public library in North Dakota for a period of one year after receiving a subsidy.
